At the outset in the wheat market the fact that Liverpool quotations showed surprising weakness tended to disconcert holders. Subsequently additional selling pressure was induced by announcement that a cargo of 360,000 bushels of Canadian wheat had arrived is Chicago. Disclosure, however, that a cargo was in bond and had been brought here in erroneous expectancy of a railroad cut rate to New Orleans did a good deal to restore confidence in the buying side.

During struggles to get back wheat which had been let go of earlier, scarcity of offerings became apparent and throughout the last half of the day a continued advance of prices took place.
